MISCELLANEOUS READING.

[COMMUNICATED. LINES. I'm sad, I'm lone, there's none to cheer,

No one to speak of hope to me; I feel that to me, life's not dear, I am alone, on life's dark sea.

The flowers of Friendship, 'round my way, Their sweetest perfumes, once did shed; I look in vain, oh! shall I say,

I find her flowers are now all dead To Pleasure's fount, she bade me come, Of her sweet waters, deep to drink, I come: but still I find no home.

From what she gives, I turn and shrink. Hope, too, her richest treasures brought; She bade me make them all my own.

I turn to grasp. Too late I'm taught

She only mocked: "and she too's gone." "Love's magic arms, she now stretched wide; She bade me to the rest I'd sought.

Within her arms, I did abide; Too late I find, "no peace she brought." "GENEVIEVE." November, 1858.

LIPS. Mr. N. P. Willis has tried Piccolomini and likes her. The following is his "jotting"

thereupon. "But how can I describe what is Piccolomini's great peculiarity? Her mouth, while she sings, plays the most dehaions pentomime possible to conceived! The eye of the spectator is so pelted with kisses, exquisitely re-100,000 presented in a sort of alto relievo, that it is absolutely bewildering. The natural action of the lips seems positively that and nothing else-kisses, caught and put into harness, and made to do duty like sung words. It is most difficult to realize as one looks and listens when she leans over the footlights-(with anything of a babit of ki-see 'seen done,' that Certificates of Packages, 10 wle, tickets, $80 00 is to eay |-- that the rest of the audience has Do do do 10 half do 4000 not mysteriously disappeared, leaving the Do do do 10 quarter do 2000 matter ettirely between one's self and her.—

I do not think there was ever before such an actress on the stage -one who was unequivocally stamped with the innocence of a child, while she left upon every auditor the mysterious memory
